Fisherman Plans To Trap Whales With Music

BOSTON.—Capt. Jack Doane, fingering his grey chin stubble and all, red as ever as a whale jail would make him world famous or an international flop.

The 67-year-old fisherman plans to cruise New England's coast like a sea-going Pied Piper, luring whales to the surface with Strauss waltzes and then corralling 'em.

He's positive his theory will work. Said he'd been working on it a generation. He has convinced Capt. Jack Long, skipper of the S.S. Westport, and excursion fishing vessel, to lend his boat for the experiment.

"I'm a peaceful man, considered most wayst," Captain Doane observed to reward. "But ever since I was a shaver in Nova Scotia I've hated whales.

Whales Cause Trouble

"Something about 'em just tangles my rigging. Lately they been causing trouble — much — in these parts.

"I mind how they rammed the excursion boat of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery company of Massachusetts. Short time ago one upended a fishing boat down Provincetown-way and like to kill a boy.

"'Cause of these things and 'cause I just naturally hate whales anyway I figured they ought to be lured into a cove and jailed up there and hopped on the head at leisure, as you might say."

He's the man for the job, he said.

"Yes, mate, I've done plenty of whale research. I know the ugly critters like music. If you remember, they were playing music on the excursion boat when they got rammed."

Lurk Off East Coast

The same whales that have been doing this promiscuous ramming, he said, still lurk off the New England coast.

"My plan is to take the old Westport out and just sit there and play music over a loud speaker system," he said.

"I've picked waltzes by that feller Strauss 'cause they're lazy things that would naturally appeal to a whale.

"The monsters will hear it and come to the boat and we'll lead 'em into a cove we got picked out. The tide will beach 'em and it'll be a regular whale jail. We'll repeat it every day till we've de-whaled the whole region."

A few infidels have scoffed at the proposed whale-jail, the Captain admitted. He attributed this to a general lack of whale savvy. "Let 'em laugh," he chuckled. "I'm a stubborn man."

Woman Tosses Gem-Laden Shoes Into Burning Trash Pile

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Mrs. Hildegard Sommerfeld's shoes were worn out so she tossed them into a trash pile to burn.

She said she didn't know there were 50 diamonds in the heel of one of them.

Mrs. Sommerfeldt, 39-year-old Ripon, Wis., bakery employe, claimed her brother put the stones in her shoe when she visited him in Holland.

The brother, Fred Stelter, charged that his sister had stolen 110 diamonds and other jewelry during her Holland visit. He lodged the complaint with federal authorities on his arrival in this country.

Mrs. Sommerfeldt said she did not find out about the gems until her brother told her the stones were in the left heel of one of her "wedgie" shoes.

She said if there were 110 diamonds in the shoes, 50 or more must have been lost when she burned the shoes.

"He never said anything about the right shoe," she said.

Mrs. Sommerfeldt, charged with smuggling, waived preliminary hearing at her arraignment before U. S. Court Commissioner Floyd E. Jenkins. Bail was set at $5000.

Patrolman Reports Murder of Wife to Police; Admits Guilt

DETROIT. — Howard Forman, homicide inspector, said that patrolman John Mudrick shot his wife to death, then methodically reported the slaying and helped three fellow-officers in the routine of his own arrest.

Mudrick, 36, a suburban Dearborn policeman for four years, was held for investigation with no charge against him.

The victim, Clara Mudrick, 32, was found on the floor of her home, face down, eight shots in her body.

Arresting officers said Mudrick told of quarreling with his estranged wife over his demand for a divorce. She agreed to give him one, according to their account, but would not put the agreement in writing.

Forman said Mudrick called police headquarters after the shooting and told the desk:

"There's been a shooting at 5032 Neckel avenue. Send an ambulance and the homicide detectives."

When officers arrived, Forman went on, Mudrick met them and said:

"There's the body. There's the gun."

Then according to Forman, Mudrick stretched out his wrists for the handcuffs and added—"and here is your man."

Specialist Predicts Toes Will Disappear

WASHINGTON.—A foot specialist predicted that 10,000 years from now nobody will suffer from ingrown toenails.

The reason is simple. By 11,948 A. D., people will have practically no toes. Hence, no toenails.

Dr. William J. Stickel, executive secretary of the National Association of Chiropodists, said:

"Feet, as we know them today, are on their way out."

At the end of 10,000 years, he says, the little toe will be completely gone. The other toes will be so retarded that the foot will look more like a hoof.

Shoes—and what some comic has laughingly called progress—are to blame

As long as man used his toes to clamber up a tree, as long as he walked barefoot through the mud and let it squiggle up between his toes there was some point in being a toe. And toes were happy.

And then, shoes. Toes were caged. Discontented, they allowed nails to grow in and bunions to grow out.

Go to any beach and try to get to the foot of the problem.

For every 1,000 lovely faces, or figures, or nicely shaped ears, it's difficult to locate one pair of decent feet.

Dr. Stickel aired his views in connection with National Foot Health week.

"I have studied the problem carefully," he said, "and have decided there is nothing rational the chiropodist can do to arrest evolution."

Motorist, 91, Stands on Head to Prove He's Healthy

SALT LAKE CITY.—A 91-year old motorist here thinks he's in better health than most younger drivers. He has one convincing argument.

Mads M. Christensen stands on his head to silence skeptics.

The enthusiastic motorist drives a 1923 model car. "I'll be dog nabbed if I would want to go back to the old horse-and-buggy days," he smiles. He bought the car 25 years ago.

Christensen credits his health to eating only two meals a day, growing a beard and not smoking or drinking. He thinks men would be healthier if they wouldn't shave

Phantoms, Banshees "Haunt" New Aircraft Vocabulary

PHILADELPHIA—The boy on the street had better start learning a brand new vocabulary if he wants to keep abreast of today's aviation parade.

That's because the Flying Fortresses, Mustangs, Thunderbolts and other planes that seemed so advanced only a couple of years ago are fast losing their strategic value, says R. R. Ziestte, general sales manager of SKF Industries, in reporting on the increased use of anti-friction bearings in new types of aircraft. The Philadelphia firm has substantially boosted production of bearings for aircraft gas turbines and other plane engines.

"Something 1...e 14 new types of planes and a half-dozen experimental pilotless craft have been revealed by the air force while numerous others are still on drafting boards," he says.

The up-to-date aviation vocabulary must now include, Ziestte said, such new names as Banshee, Stratojet, Phantom, Shooting Star, Panther, Pirate, Thunderjet and others known only by anonymous symbols such as the XS-1 which reputedly has crossed the mystic barrier of supersonic speed.

Anti-friction bearings for the new aircraft exemplify the spectacular transition, Ziestte said, pointing out that as many as a hundred bearings of a dozen different types go into a single engine, simplifying mechanical design and lubrication.

Uncle Sam Says

The dollars my young nieces and nephews earn this summer can give them a stake in the future and help keep the country's economy running on an even keel. By investing as much of their summertime earnings in United States Savings Bonds as possible, junior and sis will be building a nestegg for achievement of future goals. It's up to us grownups who have learned how big a nestegg we can accumulate through the payroll savings plan for buying savings bonds to impress upon sis and junior that the future holds for them what they hold for the future.

IN MEMORIAM:

In loving memory of our darling son and brother, James Thurman Gibson, who departed this life four years ago, on July 17, 1944.
We all often think of you:
No eyes can see us weep,
But deep within our hearts,
Your smiling face we keep.
No one knows how much we miss You; no one knows the bitter pain,
Since you have gone and left us,
Life has never been the same.
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
We try to be brave and smile
Through our tears as you would
Want us to do, and wait for the
Day dearest one, when we can all
Be in Heaven with you.
The love was great, the shock severe;
We little knew the end was near.
Only those who have lost can tell,
The pain of parting without farewell.

—Broken hearted Mother, Daddy

Self-Service Gas Stations Cut Costs

LOS ANGELES.—New self-service gasoline stations are springing up throughout Southern California. Instead of men attendants, cute girl cashiers, some on roller skates and dressed in snappy and abbreviated costumes, take your money after you have filled your own tank.

In addition to the girls there is another attractive feature for motorists:

The price for gasoline is as much as five cents a gallon under usual prices. Some of the self-service stations advertise a saving of seven cents a quart on oil.

Borrowed from the super-market system, the new idea is spreading. Estimates indicate there are more than 35 self-service stations, and the number is growing daily.

Operators claim their products are marketed at one-third the cost in ordinary stations. Harry Rothchild president of Rothchild Oil company one of several independents going in strong for the idea, says his cost is 1½ cents a gallon to the normal 4½ cents, refinery to consumer.

Self-service requires a larger area as each station uses several times the normal number of gasoline pumps, to accommodate more cars. Some stations have 20 or more pumps.

Attendants are needed only to unlock the pumps and take the customer's money after he has helped himself.

Some stations have put girl attendants on roller skates. It enables them to make quick change and handle more pumps.

Detectives Open Battered Safe Which Baffled Robbers

DENVER.—Looking at the litter surrounding the Morton Peabody incorporated's safe early one morning, detectives Fred Zarnow and John Toll figured would-be crackers had worked unsuccessfully for about six hours.

The 750-pound safe had been removed from the shop and battered, beaten, cut, hacked and burned, but it remained closed. To add insult to injury, the yeggs had used the shop's own tools for the attempted job.

Finishing the safe-cracking job, Zarnow and Toll opened the safe, in the presence of the owner, in just 90 seconds.

French Fans Shower Wrestlers With Beer

PARIS, FRANCE. — Murder the bum! Changez l'arbitre, that referee is blind! Voici, Pierre, pour another beer on that low type, Bravo, a direct hit!

Such quaint expressions are an integral part of the wrestling matches from Singapore to Scott's Bluff, Nebr., but at the Salle Wagram, a few blocks from the Arch of Triumph in Paris, it hits a new and lusty low.

The French throw inhibitions to the winds when it comes to indicating their displeasure with contenders in the manly art of the bear with the other guy.

At the Salle Wagram audience reaction is always extreme but varies along fairly strict economic lines.

The shifty-eyed open-collar standees in the single tier balcony and their equally ardent lady guests accompany their vocal derision by flipping lighted cigarette butts into the ring.

Occasionally a ringside customer is struck by mistake and the house protests.

Another favorite of the balcony crowd, restricted to those fortunate enough to be standing over the aisle, is to pour stale beer on departing combatants.

Patrons in the outer fringe of seats —or those who may be formed, roughly, the middle class spectators —are out of cigarette flipping range. However they vary the murderous exhortations by tipping, poking, kicking and generally annoying departing gladiators.

At the ringside, the well dressed dilletantes who plunked down $2.50 each for the occasional privilege of catching 240 pounds of brained bed in their laps, manifest their displeasure on these occasions by a few well placed kicks.

Short-Circuited Juke Box Sounds Its Own Fire Alarm

PHILADELPHIA. — James Fitzgerald shook his head, blinked the sleep from his eyes. He was right. The strains of "Four Leaf Clover" filled his bedroom—at 2:30 a.m.

The music was coming from the taproom below his second-story apartment. But the taproom was closed.

He stumbled down the stairs and found smoke pouring from the taproom.

It took firemen an hour to put out the blaze in the short-circuited taproom juke box. The short circuit had set the machine in operation
